

MINIMAL PROCESSING

Minimal Processing

The workshop will include a summary of the “More Product, Less Process” article and its recommendations, an overview of how various archives are implementing these guidelines, a review of case studies provided by the instructor, and a discussion of how attendees can incorporate MPLP in their archives.

Mike Strom is the Senior Archivist at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, a position he has held since 2004. Prior to TCU, Mike spent two and a half years as a processing archivist at Yale University. He has employed “More Product, Less Process” at TCU and has talked about his experiences doing so at numerous professional conferences. His article on MPLP, “Texas-sized Progress: Applying Minimum-Standards Processing Guidelines to the Jim Wright Papers,” appeared in a 2005 issue of Archival Issues.
